“Terry Gilbert’s life story explains the importance of challenging the status quo and breaking down barriers. He has used his voice and his expert knowledge of the law to be a warrior for change and a guardian of justice.”

From the Foreword by Lee Fisher

Dean and Joseph C. Hostetler-Baker Hostetler Chair in Law at Cleveland-Marshall College of Law at Cleveland State University

“For over 30 years, Terry Gilbert and I have worked together in the struggle against wrongful convictions. Terry’s efforts to expose the injustice of the Sam Sheppard case, to represent victims of police misconduct, and to highlight the toll of mass incarceration exemplify his drive to overcome deep flaws in the U.S. criminal justice system. Trying Times is the inspirational journey of a man dedicated to bettering the lives of the ignored and the marginalized.”

Barry Scheck

*Co-Founder, Innocence Project;
Professor of Law, Cardozo Law School;
Partner, Neufeld, Scheck, & Brustin*

“Trying Times takes you into the life of a radical lawyer fighting for civil rights and combating police misconduct and an unjust criminal justice system. A frank and eye-opening read for lawyers, progressives, and activists, it’s very much a book for now.”

Dr. Rhonda Y. Williams

*Professor and John L. Seigenthaler Chair in American History
Author, Concrete Demands: The Search for Black Power in the 20th Century*

“A fascinating and important book, offering a window into what ‘fighting for justice’ really entails. Shaped as a young man by Vietnam and Kent State, Terry Gilbert has spent half a century fighting for those easily cast aside, from victims of police shootings to Sam Sheppard’s son. This book is both truthful and opinionated, exactly what you’d expect from Terry Gilbert.”
